

template

By Ruth Rice

Second Place Winner, Poetry

he makes of me
burned impressions
a tactile topography
the curve of my jaw
in an urgent palm,
a tapered back, a handful of hair,
held in fingers given sight
the sculpts inverse
form, into his body
before the day claims me and his hands again
are blind