Getting to Know the English Language Proficiency Assessments for California (ELPAC)

California is transitioning to a new language assessment for students who are English learners. This next school year is the final one for the California English Learner Development Test (CELDT) and it signals changes in preparation for the new ELPAC.

Many educators have questions about the similarities and differences between the two assessments and what the change means for English learner instruction.

Getting to Know the ELPAC is designed for district and school administrators, English learner coordinators, and teachers who support English learners.

This professional learning event will explore:

- Differences and similarities between CELDT and ELPAC
- ELPAC blueprints
- Implications for integrated and designated English language development instruction

Participants may be photographed for use in promotional and/or news materials.
